

For the style tile, I wanted a very colorful page. Bright, happy colors were a main focus when selecting the layout for the homepage. I think a hybrid of the two methods will work best for my final project. Overall, I thought quite a bit about how to layout the homepage options, and what they should look like. More thought still needs to be put into the layout & design, but this was a solid step in the right direction.